MONTHLY COMMENTARY OF TARGET FUND

Performance Review

- Sept US jobs hiring surged 336k vs consensus of 170k, which led to a selloff in US Treasuries (“UST”) and bolstered a case for another Fed hike.
- Moreover, we saw US GDP growth surged in 3Q to 4.9% (annualised) up from 2.1% (annualized) in 2Q driven by robust personal consumption growth. The annualised 3Q GDP data was well above trend which surprised markets given the scale and speed of Fed rate hikes.
- As a result, UST market whipsawed across Oct 23 as volatility heightened amidst resilient US jobs and GDP growth but balanced by safe haven flows due to Israel-Hamas geopolitical risk.
- 10Y UST yield almost touched 5% in mid Oct; and closed the month at 4.93%. Overall Bloomberg UST index returned -1.1% in Oct.
- Similarly, Asian credit (measured by JACI Index) returned -0.65% in Oct, where the selloff in UST was partly offset by tightening of Asia US$ credit spreads (276 bps end Oct vs 296 bps end Sept).
- On the FX front, EM Asia FX continued to be buffeted by headwinds as US rates marched ahead, which led to widening interest rates differentials. Evidently, Asia Dollar Index returned -4.69% YTD.
- Overall the fund posted returns of -0.36% in October with bonds contributed most of drag while FX remained flat.

Outlook and Strategy

- November FOMC saw Fed kept Fed Fund Rates steady at 5.25-5.50% as anticipated. Notwithstanding that, financial market sentiment took a U-turn as Powell focused on tightening US financial conditions doing Fed’s tightening efforts. This indirectly suggested that Fed may be nearing the end of its cycle.
- We like high quality short dated IG papers between 1-5 years issued out of Japan, Korea, Australia and Middle East. We like short dated HY in India and Indonesia. We are still underweight Chinese property as a whole given that piecemeal easing policies are unlikely to address the structural issues.
- That said, the fund will gradually add duration moving forward as we want to remain opportunistic to gain alpha when US rates rally given that markets are now expecting that Fed is done.
- For FX, we continue to favour IDR, INR and THB in the mid to longer term given that Asia EM FX will likely be main beneficiary as any softer than expected US data will reinforce the notion that Fed may be done with hiking rates.
- Overall portfolio yield as of end Oct stood at 6.69%, with an average portfolio credit rating of A. Meanwhile, average portfolio duration stood at 2.75 years.

The yield of the distributions are calculated based on the total dividend payout/ex-distribution NAV.
