Performance Review

The Fund generated a total return of -9.33% to -18.85% for various share classes for the financial period under review. A historically challenging market regime has pushed most asset classes into negative territory year-to-date ("YTD"). Infrastructure equities, value/dividend-oriented equities, and floating rate loans have broadly outperformed. High yield bonds have held up better than broad equities and bonds, but are still down over -10% YTD. Longer-duration assets including IG corporate bonds, treasuries, and tech equities have been hit the hardest. REITs have underperformed more recently due to fears over rising rates and slowing growth.

C. Market Review

Month of April 2022 continued to see risk off sentiment, where global growth's concerns is back to the fore. Higher interest rates market and runaway inflation is suffocating the growth prospects. Furthermore, the lockdowns in China also increases the worries of economic growth. Quickening pace of United States ("US") tightening has pushed US Dollar Index ("DXY") to its strongest level in 2 decades, dampening investors sentiment over risky assets. Despite higher rates and lockdowns in China, crude oil continued to stay at elevated levels, due to reduction of Russia gas supplies to European countries. JPMorgan Government Bond Index-Emerging Markets ("JPM GBI EM") Asia index fell 4.4% in United States Dollars ("USD") terms, where Malaysia underperformed, falling 6.2% in April 2022.

Federal reserves ("Fed") hiked its key policy rates by 50 basis points ("bps") in May 2022, also preempting the market another twice half-point hikes in the upcoming meetings. On the rollback of quantitative easing ("QE"), Fed would start USD47.5 billion unwinding of asset purchase, from both treasuries and agency mortgage-backed securities ("MBS"). Nonetheless, global credit markets took a breather as global growth back to focus despite the still elevated inflation. Emerging market ("EM") investment grade ("IG") bonds outperformed EM high-yield ("HY") bonds. Similarly, EM local currency bonds outperformed during the monthly as well, particularly commodity exporting countries. Markets also were pacified by the easing of Coronavirus Disease 2019 ("Covid-19") lockdown restrictions in China. Global equity indices were flat, helped by strong rally in the last week of the month.

Recessionary fears underscoring central banks aggressive monetary policy to temper persistently hot inflation data weighed on the capital markets. Consequently, Standard and Poor's 500 ("S&P 500") posted its worst 1H in 50 years (-21% as of end June 2022) as volatility gripped markets on concerns that a hawkish Fed may tip the economy into a recession. 10Y United States Treasury ("UST") yields surged towards 3.47% as Fed raised rates by 75 bps at June's 2022 Federal Open Market Committee ("FOMC") following June 2022 Consumer Price Index ("CPI") data rising at a faster rate. However, UST saw a rally towards end of June 2022 as potential economic slowdown drove risk aversion sentiment; 10Y UST yields closed the month at 3.01%. Overall, UST index saw dismal performance in 1st half with 6-month performance at -9.14%. Traditional havens such as DXY index climbed 2.88% month-overmonth (MoM) as overall surge in UST yields and volatile Russia-Ukraine conflict continue to boost USD strength.

Optimistic tone returned to markets with both equities and fixed income space edged higher towards end of July 2022. Both Morgan Stanley Capital International ("MSCI") World Index and S&P 500 showed positive MoM returns of 7.86% and 9.11%, respectively. Central banks aggressive tightening of monetary policy has led to recessionary fears; this is in tandem with recent moderating US economic data seen in July 2022. 10Y UST yields steadied downward at 2.65% towards end July (-36 bps MoM). The UST rally was partly attributed to (i) markets dialing down expectations that the Fed will tone down its hawkishness; and (ii) safe haven play due to geopolitical risk. Meanwhile, UST curve (as measured by 2Y10Y spread) continued its flattening trend and subsequently inverted as the bond market factored in a more downbeat economic outlook. Consequently, EM currencies such as Thai Baht ("THB") and Indonesian Rupiah ("IDR") saw small gains towards end of July 2022 as market expects their respective central banks to take a gradual interest rate normalisation path, thus narrowing the interest rate differential. Meanwhile, Singapore Dollar ("SGD") outperformed its Asian peer in line with Monetary Authority of Singapore ("MAS") surprise July 2022 tightening move.

Manager's report

For the financial period from 1 April 2022 to 30 September 2022 (cont'd)

C. Market Review (cont'd)

Market turned cautious in August 2022 Jackson Hole symposium. S&P 500 fell 4.24% MoM whilst MSCI World Index trended downwards similarly (-4.33% MoM). U.S Treasury and credit market corrected sharply towards end of August 2022 post Powell's hawkish tone in Jackson Hole. 10Y UST yields rose 54 bps to 3.19%, while the 2-year UST level trended toward 3.5%. Notably, market consensus had skewed towards pricing in 75 bps in the upcoming September 2022 FOMC with yearend implied Fed fund rate to be around 3.50% - 3.75% level. The 2Y10Y spread was negative 30 bps, further underscoring recession risk. USD continued to soar in Aug (DXY: +2.64% MoM) and EM currencies are on the cusp of reaching multi-year highs against the USD partly due to the Yuan weakness as well as diverging interest rates path with the US.

Fed remained in driver's seat in September 2022, as it continued to spook the market. The sell-off in September 2022 intensified with S&P down 24% YTD, the lowest level since November 2020. Unsurprising, inflation remains the biggest concern in Fed's mind and US economy is going to tip into recession in 2023 given the peak fed fund futures' pricing of around 4.5% in mid 2023. Thus far, Fed has hiked rates by 300 bps, tightening the market liquid and raising risk premium for asset prices. Both August's CPI and Personal Consumption Expenditures ("PCE") suggest that the inflation had not peaked, exerting more pressure on the global market. The surge in USD, as measured by DXY, up 15% YTD has been a headwind for most asset classes in 2022. Commodity, as measured by Bloomberg commodity index, has fallen 8.1% MoM due to recession worries.

D. Market Outlook

The past quarter has brought into sharp focus the end of the Great Moderation – and the new regime of heightened economic and market volatility we outlined in our Midyear Outlook. Markets are grappling with the worsening trade-off policymakers face between growth and inflation.

The UK has been at the epicenter of this trade-off, with the government's fiscal splurge sparking a rout in domestic assets that forced the Bank of England to intervene and stabilize bond markets. We see little prospects of an economic soft-landing, or inflation falling to target quickly without a significant hit to growth.

We think equities are just starting to price in a worsening macro outlook. We see more room for equities to fall as prices are still not fully reflecting the combination of recessionary risks and higher interest rates. Consensus earnings expectations for this year and next still appear too optimistic to us given the growth backdrop.

The U.S. dollar's relentless strength, a sign of shaky risk appetite, has tightened financial conditions globally. We think relatively attractive valuations in credit, particularly investment grade, and relatively healthy corporate balance sheets suggest credit is better placed to weather a recession than equities.

We stay underweight developed market bonds, particularly at the long-end as we see a rise in term premium, or the compensation investors demand for holding bonds, amid high debt and persistent inflation. Within this broad underweight, we prefer short-term debt due to income potential with higher yields. We stay overweight inflation-linked bonds instead as we expect market expectations for inflation to retreat may have overshoot.
